

New mayor, councilmen take seats

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Councilman John Christoffersen was unanimously elected Twin Falls mayor Monday night by his fellow council members.

Christoffersen was elected in November, 1969, and took office in January, 1970. His present term will continue two more years. He is one of four holdover council members. Others are Winston Jones, serving under appointment for nearly two years, and sworn into office for the first elected term Monday night. Paul Ostyn and Tom Nelson.

Christoffersen succeeds Frank Feldman as mayor. Feldman, who gave the official mayor's badge to his successor in brief ceremonies held after the council meeting, was serving the past two as mayor. Councilman Ostyn nominated Christoffersen for mayor.

City Clerk Edythe Koonitz administered the oath of office to three new council members, including the first woman ever to hold the office in Twin Falls. Seated on the council following the ceremonies were Ann Cover, housewife, Michael P. Gray, bank executive, and Dr. Stephen Lincoln, a dentist. All three will serve four-year terms.

Christoffersen, a resident of Twin Falls for 11 years, came here from Boise to assume ownership of an automobile agency.

Mayor Christoffersen announced council assignments for the coming year.

Councilman Lincoln will serve on the city library and the health district boards. Ostyn will continue with the Youth Advisory Council and police department and will direct water and sewer matters.

Nelson will continue with parks and recreation and the fire department. Gray was named to the Planning and Zoning Commission and Accident Review Board. Jones will also serve on the Accident Review Board, the Airport Commission, and Urban Renewal Agency board.

Mrs. Cover will be a member of the Highway and Safety Committee and work with the street department.

Gooding school asks hike

By PEGGY CHU
Times-News writer
GOODING — The superintendent of the Idaho State School for the Deaf and Blind in Gooding said he will request a 13 per cent budget increase when he appears today before a legislative committee.

The Joint Finance Appropriations Committee, meeting in advance of the convening of the legislature, was scheduled to hear the Gooding institution's request later today.

Super. Edward Reay said the state school will request $915,576, an increase of 12.1 per cent over the current fiscal year's appropriation.

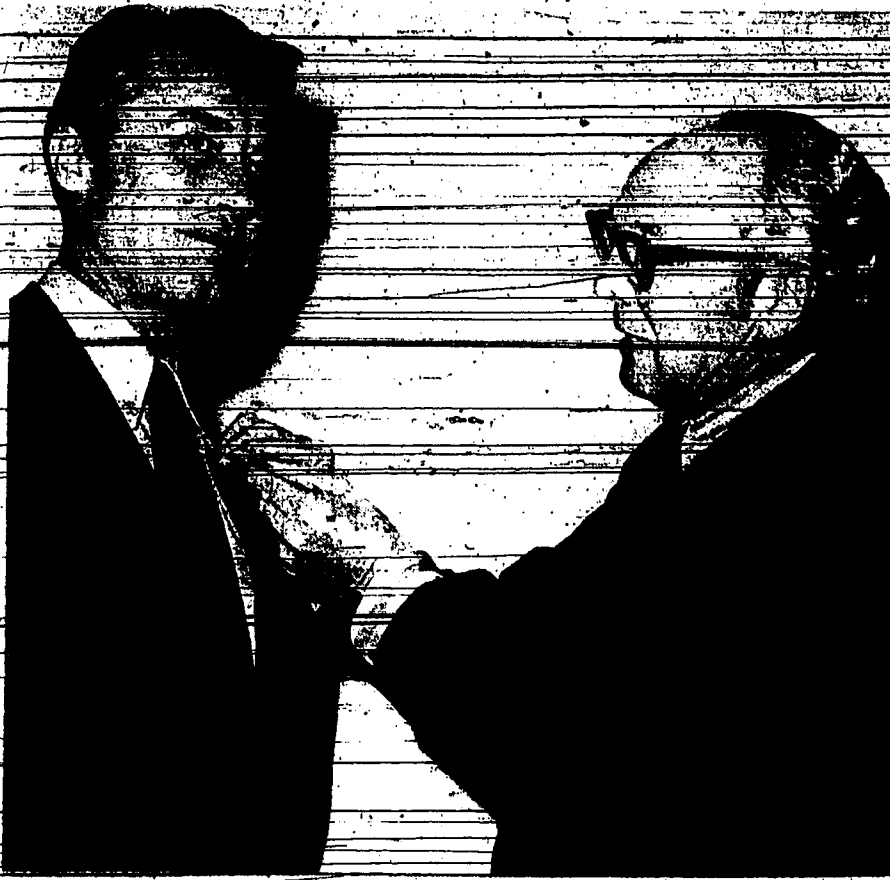

Reay said the increases would provide for the following:

- Pay raises for teachers of about 5 per cent averaging $240 a year. This would bring starting salaries for teachers at the school to $6,768 a year.
- Incremental pay increases due teacher and other personnel as they gain seniority.
- Increases for non-professional employees.
- Hire a new teacher for the deaf school joining 35 others at the institution and an account clerk.
- Meet increased general costs of operation.

Reay said the pay increases were necessary in order to make the school competitive with salaries in other states.

He said a more detailed budget breakdown will not be possible at today's legislative hearing.

He said additional house parents are needed, but that "we have not put them in this year's budget."

Filer hunter killed

FILER — Charley William Shepherd, 48, Filer, was found dead of a shotgun wound Monday afternoon in Cedar Draw Creek, eight miles northwest of Buhl.

Sheriff's officers said Shepherd had been duck hunting early in the day and apparently had slipped on ice near the stream, falling on his shotgun, causing it to discharge.

The man's wife asked friends, Jack Burdo and Robert Grady, to go look for Shepherd Monday afternoon when he failed to return. The searchers told officers they found his pickup truck near the bottom of the Crystal Springs road. They found the victim in the creek about 50 yards away.

Coroner Cloyd Edwards said Shepherd probably died about 11 a.m. or noon and probably was returning to his truck when the accident occurred.

He said death was the result of an accidental gunshot wound and no inquest will be held.

Mr. Shepherd was born Aug. 23, 1923, and had lived in the Filer area many years. He failed gravel and other material in the Buhl and Filer areas.

If the new Twin Falls mayor and councilmen don't fix the city streets they'll have a pretty ride.

GE's Wilson dies at 85

BRONXVILLE, N.Y. (UPI) — Charles E. Wilson, former president of the General Electric Co. and a member of the government's industrial mobilization boards in two wars, died Monday in Lawrence Hospital after a brief illness. He was 85.

Wilson became president of G.E. in 1940, but stepped down in 1942 when President Franklin D. Roosevelt asked him to serve on the War Production Board.

Armed medical craft downed

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. command today disclosed that American ambulance helicopters carry machine guns along with their red cross markings and have done so for 10 years.

Military spokesmen made the disclosure when asked for details of the Monday ambush of an American patrol 50 miles northeast of Saigon.

One GI was killed and 14 wounded. It was the heaviest U.S. casualty count in a single action since last May 4 when five men were killed and 10 wounded near the A Shau Valley, although there have since been heavier casualties in shelling and air crashes.

Four helicopters—one OH-6 observation craft and three UH-1 Huey Medevac helicopters—were shot down by the Viet Cong as they arrived to help the U.S. troops under attack. At least two of the choppers had to be airlifted out by other helicopters because they were put out of action.

Military spokesmen, in reply to newsmen's questions, said M60 machine guns were mounted on the medical evacuation helicopters although in this case, the guns were not fired.

The military command feels this does not violate the Geneva Convention, in the sense that they are armed for the purpose of defending the crews and the patients involved, the spokesman said. "This is the same as a medic carrying weapons in the field."

"Our helos get shot up all the time and when they are protecting patients they have right to shoot back," said a spokesman for the U.S. Army Medical Command. He said the policy had been in effect for 10 years.

Nevertheless, the combat units are taking the guns off their choppers and painting them white under a new program that seems to be cutting Medevac losses, a spokesman said. Until last fall, ambulance helicopters were painted olive drab like other choppers and carried dim red cross signs that were difficult to see from the ground. As a result, they were frequently shot at.

The U.S. command also announced belatedly that a U.S. Air Force F4 Phantom jet was lost over the Laotian upper panhandle last Friday and both crewmen were missing.

Key banks cut rates

NEW YORK (UPI) — Several large banks Tuesday lowered their prime or current lending rates to 5 per cent from around 5 1/4 per cent, matching the level set last Friday by Irving Trust Co. of New York.

Bankers Trust Co., which last week adopted a "current lending rate," sparked Tuesday's action by lowering its figures to meet money market conditions.

The rate changes generally have little immediate effect on the consumer, but they could help corporations seeking to purchase new equipment and build new facilities. The prime rate is what banks charge their most creditworthy corporate customers.

Gem blind library proposed

BOISE (UPI) — Kenneth N. Hopkins, director of the Idaho Commission for the Blind, outlined plans today for a regional library to serve the blind and physically handicapped in the state.

Hopkins was one of those who appeared before the legislature's Joint Finance Appropriations Committee to outline fiscal year 1973 budget requests. The committee has divided itself in half to hear more budget requests.

Hopkins asked for $25,000 which he said would be matched with $75,000 in federal money to begin the program. He said the same level of funding over the next two years would fully staff and equip the library.

There has been considerable speculation during the past two weeks the prime rate would be lowered to 5 per cent. One move that sparked such speculation was the action of the Federal Reserve Board Dec. 28 in lowering its key rate of dealer repurchase agreements to 3 1/4 per cent from 3 3/4 per cent.

Irving Trust and First National City Bank last fall abandoned the prime rate in favor of one based on dealer rates for 90-day commercial paper. The Bankers Trust system is based on commercial

Plan aids blacks

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — An attorney for black plaintiffs said Monday a reapportionment plan dividing the Alabama Legislature into single-member districts may result in the election of as many as 20 Negroes as state lawmakers.

The forecast of more blacks in the state house came after a three-judge federal panel ordered a complicated reapportionment plan creating 105 districts for the House and 35 for the Senate.

The court plan ignores the traditional concept of drawing legislative districts along county lines and utilizes, instead, census enumeration districts from the 1970 federal population count.

The ruling said the legislature had known for eight years of the reapportionment suit and had failed to act on the matter itself.

Jerome chief to fight

By CHARLOTTE BEL
Times-News Writer

JEROME — Police Chief C. H. Puntny, reportedly told that he will not be reappointed, intends to fight for his job.

Puntny's attorney, S. A. (Sy) Kolman, told the Jerome City Council of his client's intention during a special open meeting Monday. At that meeting, Kolman also asked for a hearing of the charges against Puntny.

The council will probably take up the matter again tonight during its regular meeting. At that meeting, set for 8 p.m. in Jerome City Hall, reappointment of Puntny and other officials will come up for consideration.

The council may reappoint Puntny, may refuse to confirm his reappointment, or hold it in abeyance until a later meeting.

On Monday afternoon, Kolman said he was employed as counsel by Puntny following a two-hour closed meeting on Dec. 27, which, he said ended with a statement to the chief that he would not be reappointed.

"If the council decides to stick to its decision not to reappoint Puntny we will have to take it beyond that because the chief wants his job, he needs his job, he feels he has done a good job as does (sic) those that work with the chief on the police force," Kolman said. "The chief will do what is necessary to protect his livelihood. He is going to fight for his job," Kolman said.

He asked Mayor J. A. (Jack) Russell and the council to arrange for a hearing, with charges against the chief being formalized, and allowing Puntny the opportunity to confront and cross-examine his accusers.

Kolman also presented 35 petitions carrying about 500 signatures of Jerome citizens endorsing Puntny's reappointment. He said he could obtain more signatures if given adequate time.

Puntny said, "I don't think that in my job or yours we can let personalities enter into it. We must work together whether we like one another or not."

"In my job, I don't care if someone likes me or not. They will get the same fair treatment as the man who thinks I'm doing a good job."

Mayor Russell told the Times-News today that the council could not make any decisions in the two meetings held this past week.

The mayor said that he had the impression during the meetings that Chief Puntny would not be reappointed and asked that the chief be appointed to a position of honor concerning his department. Mayor Russell said he had no further comment on the matter until after tonight's meeting.

Muskie, politicians jockey

By United Press International
Sen Edmund S. Muskie, who has traveled to 33 states since September to build support for a bid for the Democratic nomination for president, goes on national television tonight to make his candidacy official.

The Maine senator, who was the Democrats' candidate for vice president in 1968, will air his eight-minute announcement at 8:20 p.m. EST over CBS. He already is considered the front-runner in the race.

Muskie will become the seventh announced Democratic candidate, joining Sens. George McGovern of South Dakota, Henry M. Jackson of Washington, and Vance Hartke of Indiana, former Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, and Mayors Sam Yorty of Los Angeles and John Lindsay of New York. The 1968 nominee, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, signs to make his announcement next Monday.

President Nixon came a step closer to declaring his candidacy for the Republican nomination Monday when nominating petitions were filed on his behalf for New Hampshire's March 2 primary, the first of the presidential primary contests.

Two Republican congressmen will oppose Nixon in New Hampshire. They are Rep. John Ashbrook of Ohio, who has criticized Nixon for failing to keep his promises to conservatives, and Rep. Paul McCloskey of California, who has attacked Nixon for failing to end American participation in the Indochina War.

McCloskey and the Democratic National Committee Monday asked CBS to grant them equal time to respond to Nixon's hour-long television interview on the network Sunday night.

An aide to McCloskey said the congressman would carry his case to the Federal Communications Commission if CBS is turned down by CBS.

Mrs. Nixon visits in three African nations

MONROVIA, Liberia (UPI)—An inaugural banquet for President William R. Tolbert today climaxed the final day of the first part of Mrs. Richard M. Nixon's diplomatic visit to three African nations.

Mrs. Nixon officially represented the American delegation to Liberia's presidential inauguration. She had a reserved seat for the banquet next to Tolbert, the Baptist minister who took the oath of office Monday.

The American First Lady was also scheduled to tour the Liberian army's largest training center as part of the final day of her visit to Liberia, founded by freed American slaves.

Mrs. Nixon, the Rev. Billy Graham and a number of African dignitaries sat through 95-degree temperatures Monday and listened to a speech by Tolbert in which he emphasized a pragmatic approach to economy.

Before the ceremony, Mrs. Nixon was embraced by Tolbert, 58, who earlier had spoken with enthusiasm of her presence in the West African nation.

Although Mrs. Nixon appeared to have remained comfortable in the sweltering sun, Graham, President Felix Houphouet Boigny of the Ivory Coast and Mokhtar Ould Daddah of Mauritania fanned themselves with the inaugural programs seeking relief from the high temperatures.

Later Mrs. Nixon was given Liberia's highest decoration, a cookie-sized medal known as the Grand Order of the Most Venerable Order of the Pioneers.

The words "Here we are, here we shall remain" were inscribed on the medal.

Mrs. Nixon leaves Wednesday for Ghana as part of a two-day goodwill tour of the former British colony, then is scheduled to visit Abidjan, capital of the Ivory Coast.

In his speech, Tolbert said his personal motto would be "Economy and Honesty in Government."

Bangladesh celebrate release of nation's political leader

By United Press International

The new country of Bangladesh took on a holiday mood today, still celebrating the impending release of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, the charismatic political leader and father of the 16-day-old nation.

Pakistan President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto told a crowd in Karachi Monday that he would free Mujib, as he is popularly called, from house arrest in West Pakistan and let him return to his people.

Bhutto did not set a date for Mujib's release, but said it would be after he held additional talks with the Bangladesh leader.

In Dacca, the capital of the new country, thousands of cheering, shouting Bengalis poured into the streets in a spontaneous celebration of Bhutto's announcement.

Officially, the Indian government withheld comment until more details were available. The Press Trust of India (PTI) news agency quoted Tajuddin Ahmed, Bangladesh's prime minister and one of Mujib's top assistants in the Awami League political party, as saying the action showed West Pakistan was forced to bow to democracy.

Eagle injured, treated

CLAY CENTER, Kan. (UPI)—A bald eagle, a species increasingly rare and near extinction, was being treated to day at a zoo here for injuries he suffered when he apparently flew into a telephone line.

The bird, his wing broken, was discovered Sunday afternoon near Junction City by three men. Two game protectors brought the bird to Clay Center for treatment.

Junction City police said they thought the bird struck a telephone line, but they had not ruled out the possibility the bird had been shot.

Sky marshal program may be cut by one-third

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government's sky marshal program—once billed as a major deterrent to airliner hijacking—may be cut back by almost one-third, it was learned today.

Government sources said the Office of Management and Budget is considering cutting as much as $11 million from the $37 million program in the business year starting July 1.

Since the program started in September, 1970, the government has trained about 1,500 sky marshals. But the marshals, who are armed, have yet to thwart an inflight hijacking.

On the one occasion when a sky marshal was aboard a hijacked airliner—an American Airlines 747-jumbo jet, forced to fly to Cuba—it was decided not to risk an attempt to capture the hijacker.

But if the sky marshals are to be "deplaned," they won't lose their jobs, the source said. Most of them will be used to bolster the airport boarding security system, which has become the main block to hijackers, or will work for the Customs Bureau, which is in charge of recruiting sky marshals.

The combination of a psychological profile—a series of personality characteristics often common to potential hijackers—and the use of a weapons detection system at airport gates is given the major credit for easing the hijacking threat.

According to the government, more than 1,500 air travelers were arrested in 1971 at airport gates on charges ranging from smuggling drugs to carrying firearms. There were 11 successful hijackings of U.S. planes in 1971. But this compared to 18 in 1970 and 34 in 1969.

The Federal Aviation Administration wants to strengthen the airport security system even more.

In testimony before a Senate appropriations subcommittee recently released, Undersecretary for Transportation James Beggs admitted that the sky marshal program was not as successful as the government had hoped.

The plan is that we have had hijackings with sky marshals aboard the plane. We have found it very difficult for them to act successfully when a skyjacker has a stewardess or has gained access to the pilot's compartment by one means or another, and so we are in a sense deemphasizing the sky marshal program.

The government is not alone in its opinion of the effectiveness of sky marshals.

McGovern enters primary CONCORD, N.H. (UPI)—Sen. George S. McGovern, the first announced candidate for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, today formally entered New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation primary election.

McGovern, who decided Monday to skip the Illinois primary planned to file his nominating petitions at 9 a.m. EST with Secretary of State Robert Stark.

One of McGovern's rivals in New Hampshire's March 7 Democratic ballot, Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, was expected to file nominating petitions Thursday, the filing deadline. Muskie, considered the early front-runner, officially planned to enter the presidential campaign today.

McGovern's entry into the New Hampshire race came a day after former Gov. Lane Dwinell filed petitions to place President Nixon's name on the Republican primary ballot.

Graveside services will be held Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. at Sunset Memorial Park with Father Simeon Van DeVoord officiating. White Mortuary is in charge of the arrangements.

Dilemma

Congressional Democrats who supported escalation of the Vietnam war during the presidency of Lyndon Johnson and later led the chorus of demands for immediate withdrawal have generally accepted the fact that President Nixon is effectively removing American forces from Southeast Asia without inviting a Communist takeover.

Thus, the war has been relegated to a secondary place in their political strategy for the presidential election campaign in 1972.

Democratic leaders have chosen the economic issue as the headliner for their bid to regain the White House. And if the administration is correct in its views that its measures to boost employment and regain a competitive position in world markets will be effective before the election, that issue, too, will fade.

It is a truism that pocketbook issues affect the American voter more than anything except war, when money becomes secondary to survival. Although more Americans are working than ever before, the jobless rate runs approximately 6 per cent. Experts predict that unless this rate is reduced below 5.5 per cent, President Nixon will find himself waging an uphill fight to retain his office.

As the rift between organized labor and Nixon widened, Democratic hopefuls rushed to embrace the cause of George Meany, AFL-CIO chief, who has the means to finance a big share of Democratic campaign expenses. And the Democrats, deep in debt, are desperate for money.

Two proposals are winning support for curbs on labor's political clout. One, a law to bar a labor organization from using any part of compulsory dues for support of national candidates, has been approved by the House Administration Committee. Its chances for enactment by the present Congress, controlled by Democrats, are remote.

The other, a drive by the National Right to Work Committee to win a federal law outlawing compulsory union membership, has no chance at all although the committee says polls show a two to one majority of the public and 35 to 40 per cent of union members favor it. Its own executive, Reed Barton, says simply that too many members of Congress owe their elections to the union funds and the union votes to support right to work.

WASHINGTON — In the absence of its hospitalized chairman, Rep. John Blatnik of Minnesota, the House Public Works Committee quietly approved a billion-dollar building boondoggle on Dec. 26, that the White House has been fervently pushing the last four months. If the House itself puts a ribbon on the committee package, President Nixon will have one of his sweetest post-Christmas presents: a restoration of the old lease-purchase method of constructing and financing government buildings which opponents say costs the taxpayer nearly twice as much as direct government financing via open Congressional appropriation.

But for the President, it has two glittering assets: first, it bypasses Congressional appropriations by back-door financing, which excludes the cost of the buildings from the swollen Federal budget; second, it is an election-year boost for the already booming construction industry.

For Congressmen in districts due to get one of the 63 new government buildings — House Majority Leader Hale Boggs of Louisiana is included — lease-purchase also has obvious charm. Boggs has been pushing it, along with the entire Republican leadership and Republican members of the Public Works Committee.

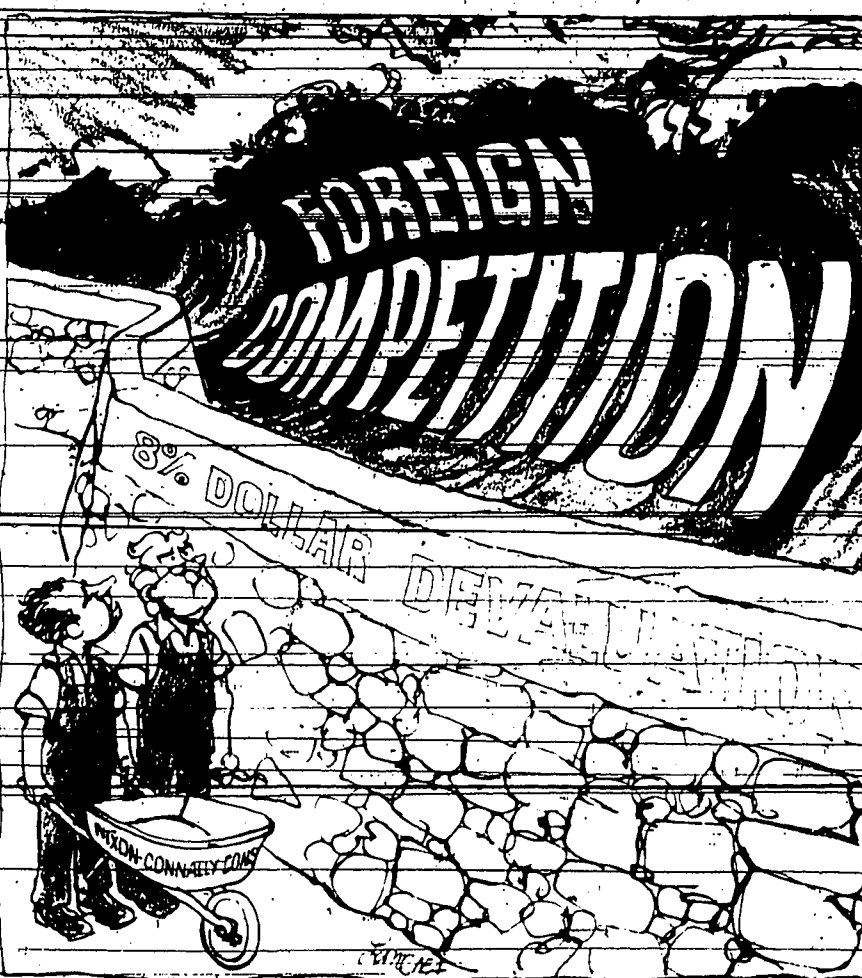

The new lease-purchase program was drafted by the General Services Administration (GSA), the Federal government's housekeeper, with strong assistance from the White House. It would permit the Nixon administration to make construction deals with private contractors covering nearly $800 million in direct construction costs. But opponents say the actual cost under lease-purchase, which commits the government to pay the builder an annual leasing fee for the 10- to 30-year life of the contract, could double that figure.

In 1954, the Eisenhower administration embarked on a lease-purchase program that ended in failure. A Public Works Committee majority recommended terminating it in 1958 on grounds that it was "the most indefensible waste of funds in the history of government construction."

The lease-purchase plan would not have been revived if the GSA, understandably worried about a decline in construction of Federal buildings, had not come up with a novel idea: a government building-construction fund to be financed by annual "user" or rent payments by every government agency. That plan, for a multi-million-dollar revolving fund for construction of all future Federal buildings, was enthusiastically received in Congress.

But unable to get the Nixon administration to openly ask Congress to appropriate funds to build the 63 buildings already authorized, GSA came up with the lease-purchase plan and it was rammed through without a roll call. The White House is now pushing for a House vote early this month. But Blatnik is back in business and Rep. George Mahon of Texas, chairman of the powerful Appropriations Committee, is most unenthusiastic — about back-door spending bypassing his committee. Mr. Nixon won't get his lavish post-Christmas present without a battle.

Home Of The Brave

WASHINGTON (NEAT) — A good many observers are telling us these days that America is not — as the worst gloom-mongers say — falling apart at the seams. The reassurances are comforting, but somewhat deceptive.

There can't be any doubt that we are still a people of immense energy, ability and resourcefulness. We can muster great good will. Our open-hearted cheerfulness of spirit is the envy of the world.

Despite complaints of "repression" there is more freedom in this country than ever. More and more people, proportionately, are getting into the act and having something to say about what is done and how.

Nevertheless, there is altogether too much wrong with the way we live and far too much readiness to blind ourselves to the uncomfortable facts. Indeed, we tend nowadays to force ourselves for every shortcoming. We have just about perfected the alibi.

For instance, everybody knows that crime has reached frightening proportions. But too many people try to ease the pain of it by explaining it away as the consequence of "deprivation." Certainly, some of it is. Yet a great amount of America's crime today is committed by people who aren't deprived at all.

We moan a lot about untrustworthiness and corruption in government, and unhappily there seems to be more of it than ever. But there among the complaining voters, however, are tens of thousands who like to pretend that stealing is not stealing — or that it is not so bad.

In this country, stealing a costly automobile is called "joy-riding." Gross vandalism is often dismissed as a "prank." Do we realize how absurd we sound when we have to announce, by way of warning, that "shoplifting is a crime?"

It is a sad fact of American life in the 1970s that if you don't nail something down it is likely to be stolen. Those who think things were always that way either can't remember very far back or weren't around in earlier times.

It is also sad that Americans can't seem to gather in any considerable numbers any more without touching off some kind of ugly disturbance which too often grades into open riot.

Here in the capital, the agreeable habit of going out to greet the homecoming football team has been turned by the unruly into a festival of vandalism and general public misbehavior.

Pittsburgh's "celebration" of its 1971 World Series baseball triumph clearly had its disgraceful aspects, not to mention law suits. The Washington Senators' last game of all time in Washington ended with a nasty public display which some sportswriters accepted as healthy complaint. They didn't want to look.

For at least a decade, the behavior of many Americans in political campaigns has ranged from merely impolite to downright dangerous. Call it "high spirits" if you will. The fact is, crowd behavior in this country frequently imperils human safety.

Then, too, America really isn't the great workshop of the world any more. Oh, it still produces far more goods than any nation, and still turns out some great things. Ask the responsible merchants, though, about general quality. They'll tell you that too often we're slipping into shoddiness. It's no surprise that the Japanese and Germans are beating us in the marketplace.

Much more could be said of the flagging American spirit. But the alibi artists will tell you tomorrow that it isn't true.

ANDREW TULLY

It's March

WASHINGTON — For the Presidential candidate, March is tomorrow, which explains why Sen. Ed Muskie and George McGovern these days are on the move frequently with Florida's moderate young Gov. Reubin Askew.

The contenders both want the 43-year-old Askew's support in Florida's March primary. Almost surely, neither will get it. Askew is determined to remain neutral, although he probably would campaign against George Wallace if the Alabama governor entered the primary.

More important to voters from Maine to California, Muskie and McGovern are interested, if still uncommitted, in Reubin Askew as a Vice Presidential running mate. Indeed, people in the Muskie camp admit that as of today Askew is the favorite to fill out their ticket. McGovern's folks say Askew is merely one of several Vice Presidential possibilities, but they admire the Askew style.

Meanwhile, the celebrated noncandidate, Sen. Teddy Kennedy, also is reported to be interested in Askew's future. Illinois political sources close to Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley claim Kennedy has mentioned Askew to Daley as a man Kennedy could support with enthusiasm at the Democratic national convention. Daley is said to look upon Askew with approval, but reportedly would prefer Arkansas' Rep. Wilbur Mills, as a candidate with more muscle in the South.

The significance of all this maneuvering is that the Democrats, as a party, are convinced their 1972 ticket must be graced by a Southern, conservative to run with Sen. National Chairman Larry O'Brien hammers away at this theme at his almost-weekly conclaves with the contenders. Most state and county chairmen go along. The Democrats, in short, are not prepared to concede Dixie to either Richard Nixon or George Wallace.

Askew's name keeps popping up for the No. 2 spot because he proved in his victory over Republican Gov. Claude R. Kirk that he can bring people together. He got both the conservative and the liberal vote in that election, and he has maintained his popularity with both ideological camps.

This makes him a man with whom the mix which is the Democratic Party can live. His bold stand in favor of busing children too desegregate the public schools makes him acceptable to Northern liberals. So does his successful campaign to oppose a tax on corporations. At the same time, his authentic Southernness and what Miami Mayor David Kennedy calls Askew's "complete integrity" has kept the conservatives happy.

As Mayor Kennedy has pointed out, "The conservatives hate school busing, but they admire Askew's guts in supporting an unpopular issue. And they know he's not a radical liberal. After all, he got 70 per cent of the vote on the referendum on the corporate tax, and there had to be a lot of conservative votes in that pile."

Nevertheless, Askew's weakness is that he might be considered too liberal to run with, say, George McGovern or Hubert Humphrey or Teddy Kennedy, and — too conservative to run with Sen. Henry Jackson.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Double Vision

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes double vision and is there any cure for it? B.S.

There are six muscles that control the movement of the eyeball and a seventh that elevates the eyelid. Normally, these muscles cooperate so precisely and automatically that the image on the retina of one eye corresponds almost exactly with the image in the other eye. Then you see just one image. Or you think you do actually depth perception depends on the fact that both eyes, being separated by a couple of inches, do not "see" exactly the same thing. Look at something, closing first one eye and then the others and you'll understand what I mean.

Now suppose something prevents the eyes, or one eye, from having the two images correspond. Then you have double vision. You have two images that remain separate instead of virtually being superimposed on each other. Weakness, or paralysis, of one, or more, of the muscles in either eye can cause double vision. So can faulty focussing of eyeglasses, but I presume that you have had that checked.

What causes such muscular defects isn't easy to pin down to any single cause. There may have been an injury, or some form of poisoning, or there may have been an inherited defect, or some illness may have had such an effect.

The only thing of which you can be certain is that there is no point in trying to determine the cause yourself. This requires examination by an eye specialist. Once he has done so, then he can tell what to do about it — surgery on an eye muscle may be possible; correction of some toxic condition is a different possibility. It may, in some instances, be possible to do some correcting by means of glasses, but you'll have to leave that up to him.

Troubled with gout? To learn of new treatment for this cruel and painful disease, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper for a copy of his booklet, "Gout — The Modern Way to Stop It."

MR. SPECTATOR

Space In 1972

It is going to be a busy year up in the air — or rather above the air — for the United States.

Two manned Apollo missions to the Moon, the launch of a Pioneer two-year flight to Jupiter, and the first Earth Resources Technology Satellite will be among the highlights of the 1972 space flight program of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

In addition, the NASA schedule includes a broad range of scientific and applications satellites, aeronautical research and cooperative exploration with other countries.

The fifth and sixth Apollo lunar landings are scheduled during March and December of this year. They will be the final missions on NASA's manned lunar exploration program.

On Apollo 16 Astronauts John W. Young, Thomas K. Mattingly II and Charles M. Duke will be launched from the Kennedy Space Center on March 17. Young and Duke will land in a mountainous highland region near the crater Descartes on March 20 to explore the area for three days. The spacecraft will return to Earth on March 29.

Apollo 17 mission will be carried out by Astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison H. (Jack) Schmitt at a site yet to be selected. Schmitt, who holds a doctorate degree in geology, will be the first scientist to land on the Moon.

The new year is to be of major importance in the space shuttle program. Decisions will be forthcoming on final design of the manned space vehicle and development by the aerospace industry will be initiated.

During the trip to Jupiter, which will take about two years and cover more than half a billion miles, the 60 pounds of instruments in the 550-pound Pioneer F will measure hydrogen atoms, electrons, nuclei of hydrogen, helium and other elements, and the interplanetary magnetic field.

Yep, Mr. Spectator just thought you might be interested in all these things.

You might be interested in another little bit of information. With all these guys going to the Moon and the like it gives us itchy feet and so we are now planning an extensive vacation sometime during the year. Of course, it will not be anything like the Moon shots but during our time off we hope to see Filer, Hagerman, Wendell and possibly Jerome as we make the vacation circuit. That is, providing we have enough money for the gasoline — or a car to put it in.

Secondary sewage treatment plans outlined

BY BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Two plans for converting Twin Falls' primary sewage treatment plant to required secondary treatment were outlined for city officials Monday.

Engineers put the cost of one plan at $4 million and the cost of the second proposal at $3.5 million.

Earl Reynolds and Mike Angles of the CH2M Engineering firm, Boise, released the figures in a feasibility study report Monday.

The engineering experts met with the City Council and newly elected council members to outline results of their year-long study.

The alternate figures are based on two plans. The first and more expensive would combine urban and industrial waste treatment including the industrial discharges from Idaho Frozen Foods potato processing plant and would require slightly over $4 million. The other plan, excluding Idaho Frozen Foods, and handling city wastes and those of smaller industries in terms of waste discharge, would cost about $1.5 million.

Angles told the council local costs would be prorated so all users would be providing their share. They would also have to share in the cost of operation and maintenance.

The first alternative plan, including the major industry, would require about $216,000 per year for operation while without the large industrial treatment requirements, costs would run about $118,000 for annual operation.

In either case, about 25 per cent of the costs will have to be provided locally. Those costs are estimated at $1.8 million for the first alternative and $338,000 for the second.

Reynolds told the council the city's primary system was designed with expansion and conversion to secondary methods in mind. A new secondary system would encompass all of the present facility located north of the city in Snake River Canyon. It would meet the state's requirement for 85 per cent removal of all impurities which is now the standard for municipal systems.

He said federal funding should be applied for immediately. Reynolds said there are no state funds available now but Twin Falls holds the top priority should more money become available next year.

The engineers recommended the city meet with Idaho Frozen Foods Inc. to decide if the city and industry should join forces or construct separate facilities. He said Idaho Frozen Foods would be responsible for about 75 per cent of local costs.

This is based on tests of volume and content of wastes presently discharged from the city and the industries.

Reynolds said the proposed improvement is based on meeting the needs of a population of about 30,000, which Twin Falls is expected to reach within 20 years.

The firm recommended the city, if going ahead with either alternative, review commercial and industrial sewage treatment charges and establish a rate which would cover construction and maintenance. City officials said they now have on hand an amount about equal to what would be required for local matching funds if the second alternative, without the industry included, were selected.

Reynolds said the city should plan to adopt one or the other plan and begin design of the facility as early this year as possible, be ready to award a construction contract by March, 1973, and complete construction by mid-1974. He said this would be about a year behind the state's recommended schedule, but said time allowed by the state for meeting more rigid requirements has proven inadequate and the state would probably accept this schedule, knowing the city was taking steps toward construction.

Reynolds and Angles said a full, written report will be ready for city officials soon.

Agents to testify over home search

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Four FBI agents were scheduled to testify in U.S. District Court today about searches they conducted at the homes of antiwar activists in New York and Philadelphia.

Attorneys for the Rev. Philip Berrigan and seven other defendants in an alleged kidnap-bomb plot asked Judge R. Dixon Herman to prohibit the government from using as trial evidence any materials confiscated in the searches.

The trial of the eight is scheduled to begin Jan. 10.

Defense lawyer J. Thomas Menaker of Harrisburg said FBI agents James Daley and Matthew Cronin were subpoenaed because they searched the Brooklyn apartment of defendant Eghal Ahmad, a Pakistani scholar. He said they did not have search warrants.

"We want to hear why they searched there and what they got," Menaker said.

Estate appraised

BOISE (UPI) — The estate of the late Harry W. Morrison has been appraised at $6.5 million, Magistrate Gerald F. Schroeder reported Monday.

Morrison was a world-renowned builder who made his home in Boise.

Schroeder said probate of the estate has progressed to a point where partial distribution of Morrison's will is possible.

The government's chief prosecutor, William S. Lynch, said the search without a warrant was legal because the agents were looking for a fugitive, the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, Philip's brother.

Menaker said the second search was conducted in Philadelphia in February 1970, by FBI agents Robert D. Aldrich and Delbert C. Toohey. The house they searched, located in the Strawberry Mansion area of Philadelphia, was named in the indictment as a meeting place of the defendants.

"We know things were taken from there," Menaker said.

The eight defendants are charged with conspiring to kidnap presidential adviser Henry Kissinger, blow up heating ducts in government buildings in Washington, and raid draft board offices in nine states.

Malta promises to summon help

VALETTA (UPI) — Premier Dom Mintoff says he will "summon foreign armies" if needed to force British forces off the strategic Mediterranean island they have used for 170 years.

Mintoff faced growing discontent from within his own Labor party rank and file for his demand the British quit naval and air bases on the island because some 7,000 workers will lose their jobs once the British evacuate.

The Malta's premier answered an angry parliament Monday night by saying the Jan. 15 deadline for British withdrawal still stood despite British claims they cannot possibly evacuate their 10,000 troops and dependents within the time limit.

"We have friends," Mintoff said. "We have allies every where. If the need arises, in the national interest, we could summon foreign armies to the island."

However, Mintoff did not say under what circumstances he would call for foreign forces or where they would come from.

One questioner asked Mintoff if reports that some Libyan troops had already landed on the island.

"As you know, the only foreign forces on the island now are British," Mintoff replied.

Mintoff has wooed Libya for economic support since he demanded the British leave for refusal to pay an additional $1 million rent for the military bases. However, government sources said Libya so far has not come up with any money promises to Mintoff.

REV. LEE ROBBINS, evangelist, tenor soloist and recording artist, will present a special musical service at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday at Faith Assembly of God Church, 178 Filer Ave. W., Twin Falls. He will sing many favorite gospel songs, according to Rev. Clay Stephens, pastor.

Owner sought

CASTLEFORD — The Twin Falls Sheriff's Department is trying to locate the owner of an unattended band of sheep on and near a county road west of Balanced Rock.

The sheep were spotted by a pilot flying over the area and reported to the sheriff's office.

Apparently the sheep are in a low traffic area and relatively free from danger. The number of sheep in the band is not known.

Filer shows population up

BY MARJORIE LIERMAN
Times-News Writer

FILER — The past year marked the beginning of an upward curve in population for Filer, and this trend should increase each coming year, according to several citizens, one of whom expects the town to practically double in the next ten years.

Basis for these predictions is the number of new homes being erected in the community, several new mobile home parks which were rapidly filled, and the recent annexation of the Regal subdivision north of the city which will bring 38 new units to the town. At the elementary school, a marked increase in enrollment was shown last fall and school officials cite a good number of inquiries from parents of small children as to schools in the area.

In addition, more and more people are beginning to move to smaller towns and the country and drive to larger towns to work.

Sewer and water connections are now being placed in the Regal subdivision prior to construction. The Cedarholm subdivision west of the city has only one or two vacant spots to be filled and a new subdivision south of the new highway has started. A committee is still working on proposed low-cost housing units to be directed under the HUD program.

Business-wise, the growth is slower, although one new building, a janitorial service, was added to the cluster of stores in the Fairway Shopping Center on the highway. The Idaho First National Bank will move to a spot adjacent to the center when construction begins in March at the corner of Fair Avenue and Highway 30 which is presently occupied by Tony's Lounge. The bank purchased the one-acre lot during the early fall.

The new section of Highway 30 was finished late in the year after several setbacks due to a strike and workmen unwilling to cross picket lines. Construction on the new road began in the spring and would have been completed approximately at fair time but was postponed several weeks while unions tried to negotiate. The new road was widened through the south part of the town and runs west to Buhl.

The Filer City Park was completed during 1971 and offers a good variety of sports to people of all ages as well as picnic grounds. According to many people, the only thing lacking is a swimming pool and this will soon become an actuality following a community meeting in which a large number of people expressed support for the pool and offered to help canvass for contributions.

The fairgrounds successfully hosted the National High School Rodeo, a first for Idaho, and also played host during the annual fair to the first Register of Merit Hereford Show in Idaho. The new bandstand facilities were put to good use for both events and officials in charge of the shows seemed well pleased with the grounds.

Viruses thrive

BOISE (UPI) — Dr. John Mather, the Department of Health's director of preventive medicine, said Monday that influenza viruses thrive in crowds and while the disease could be considered in epidemic stages in some areas not as many cases have been reported in Idaho as last year.

Several Idaho schools have closed in the past week for several days because of flu and an absenteeism rate of 15 per cent. In 21 weeks of this year 5,337 cases of influenza were reported as compared to 9,619 in 1970 during the same period.

Denial asked

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The state of California argued Monday that black militant Angela Davis was not illegally imprisoned and asked that her federal court petition for release on bail be denied.

Assistant Attorney General Albert W. Harris Jr. said the former UCLA instructor was being properly held under a provision of the California constitution that forbids bail when proof was shown sufficient to sustain a conviction on an offense punishable by death. Miss Davis was charged with murder, kidnap and conspiracy for allegedly supplying some of the guns used in the August, 1970 Marin County courtroom escape attempt and gun battle in which four persons, including a judge were killed. Harris also said in answer to the defense habeas corpus petition that "security measures adopted with respect to her detention are reasonable and necessary and not a proper subject for inquiry by a federal court."

U.S. District Court Judge William T. Sweeney set Jan. 12 for a show cause hearing on Miss Davis' petition. Her trial is scheduled to start Jan. 31 in Santa Clara County where she was transferred after the defense requested a change of venue from Marin County.

Courses begin

TWIN FALLS — The January series of defensive driving courses will begin at 7 p.m. today in Room 120, Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School, according to Gordon Smith, instructor.

The class, which requires a $5 registration fee, is aimed at improving driving skills of the experienced driver. Developed by the National Safety Council, the defensive driving course includes 10 hours of classroom in four 2 1/2-hour sessions. The class will meet from 7 to 9:30 p.m. on successive Tuesdays and Thursdays. The instruction has proven valuable to fleet drivers, police, prowl-car drivers and others who spend many hours behind the wheel, Smith said.

Alarms answered

TWIN FALLS — Two Twin Falls City fire engines answered an alarm at the Beynig Paving Co. yard on Floral Avenue about 8:40 p.m. Monday but fire was confined to an asphalt boiler, firemen said.

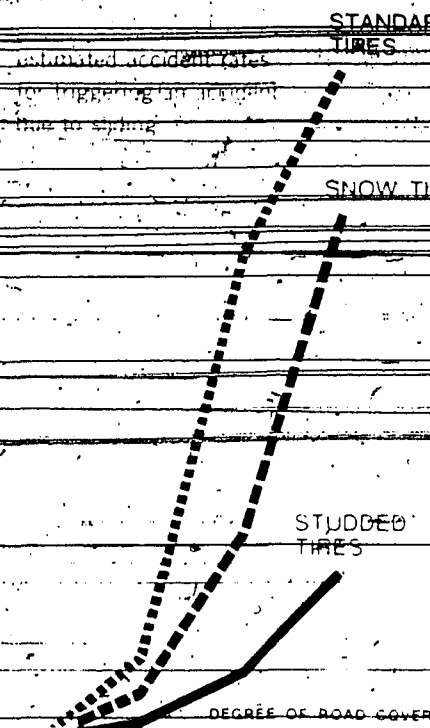

Firemen said the firm has a gas-fired boiler to keep the asphalt soft and warm and light oil circulates by pipe through the unit. One of the oil pipes broke, spewing oil into the gas fed fire box and spread fire around the boiler and surrounding area. The boiler is located outside and free of any buildings, firemen said.

They estimated damage would be confined to the loss of business and asphalt while the unit is being repaired.

Studded snow tires proven safe

ACCIDENT RATES FOR STUDDED TIRES COMPARED TO OTHER TIRES

WASHINGTON D.C. — The safety of studded snow tires has been confirmed by an official study of police accident records and driver questionnaires in the state of Minnesota, according to the Tire Industry Safety Council.

The study, conducted by the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory for the Minnesota Department of Highways, shows that on ice and snow:

- Cars with studded tires were involved in fewer accidents than other cars.
- The accidents involving cars with studded tires tended to be less serious than other accidents.
- Injuries to occupants and damage to vehicles tended to be less severe with studded tires.
- Studded tires improved vehicle directional control, loss of which was termed a primary problem.

This study corroborates what most groups concerned with highway safety always have stated — that safety studded snow tires do make a major contribution to increased highway safety during hazardous winter driving conditions," said Ross R. Ormsby, council chairman.

The C.A.I. study, which cost over $60,000 was authorized by the Minnesota legislature in 1969. A separate $245,000 study was authorized to determine the degree of extra wear studded tires bring to various types of pavement. The purpose of both studies was to help the 1971 legislature decide whether safety benefits outweighed the pavement damage.

The pavement study, conducted by the American Oil Co. of Whiting, Ind., and supported by several states, showed extra wear due to stude.

Ormsby said, however, "We have always maintained that the safety advantages of studded tires outweigh the extra wear involved, and C.A.I. report certainly supports that position," he said.

A key question in the report was "Do you think studded tires help one to drive nearer the speed limits on slippery roads?" Seventy-one per cent of all drivers, and 84 per cent of drivers with studded tires, replied "yes."

To get accident data, officers of the state highway patrol and participating police departments were asked to fill out supplementary accident reports dealing with tires, damage, and road conditions during February, April and October-December in 1970.

The most attention was given to vehicles involved which "triggered" accidents by sliding on slippery roads.

"Approximately one out of five accidents was triggered by vehicles involved due to sliding," the report said. "Fifteen per cent of all injuries occurred in accidents triggered by sliding," it said.

Knothole games slated

TWIN FALLS — Chad Browning, Twin Falls City recreation director, has released the winter schedule of knothole basketball games, to be played each Saturday.

Sixth-grade games, to be played at Robert Stuart Junior High School, include: 8 a.m. games: Harrington's Hawks vs. Lutheran and Nutting's Knicks vs. John's Jaguars; 9 a.m. games: Hines Super-ninds vs. Kimberly Leisures and Tiekner's Tornadoes vs. Kurtz Willets; 10 a.m. games: Craven's, Creators vs. Kimberly Allens and Everett's Golden Eagles vs. Hafer's Hotshots; 11 a.m. games: Fireballs vs. Donnelly's

6 factories close for week

WOLFBURG, Germany (UPI) — The Volkswagen Motor Company, West Germany's biggest industrial enterprise, today closed down six domestic factories for one week because of low orders, a company spokesman said.

The spokesman blamed a "worsening domestic consumer climate" and difficulties in the export market for the decision. He said assembly lines would be running again next Monday.

The shutdown affected about 90,000 of the company's 130,000 work force, the spokesman said.

MRS. Culver, 39, sat by the body of her husband Stanley for four days, then decided to hike out after the snow melted a bit. She finally made it after hiking for six hours, sometimes through four-foot snow drifts. "The nearest county road was a mile and a half away and it took her three and a half hours to cover that stretch."

"I fell down several times but I kept going," she said. She wore heavy boots, ski coat, and gloves and had a shovel to keep her balance.

She found an emergency telephone at the road but it didn't work.

Mrs. Culver trudged two miles down the road and saw neighbors gave her a key.

Argentine heat wave kills 102

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — At least 102 persons died last week from the effects of a heat wave which scorching this capital, police reported Monday.

The Public Health Service said that 100 of 500 persons requiring hospital treatment were still hospitalized Monday.

Among the fatalities, police said, were 67 elderly persons who died from dehydration and kidney disorders caused by the temperatures which hovered in the high 90s.

At least 35 others, most of them young people, drowned at beaches around the capital.

The heat eased somewhat Monday with the noon temperature reported at 84.3.

GRAND COULEE, Wash. (UPI) — Contractors working on the giant third powerhouse addition to Grand Coulee dam in central Washington must feel the weather and everything else is working against them.

Officials for Vinnell-Dravo, Lockheed-Mannix, the combine serving as prime contractor for the project, announced today concrete pouring on the dam will be discontinued until at least Feb. 1.

Last month the project was shut down for 22 days before an attempt was made to start pouring again today. However, temperatures around 10 degrees caused workers to discontinue their efforts.

A spokesman for the combine said temperatures of 20 degrees or higher were needed for concrete pouring in open areas.

He said the actual date for the startup will depend upon the weather conditions and temperatures around the beginning of next month.

Study of Basques awarded U.S. funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Endowment for the Humanities has awarded a $52,285 grant to Idaho to support two years of a comprehensive education program on the Basque cultural heritage.

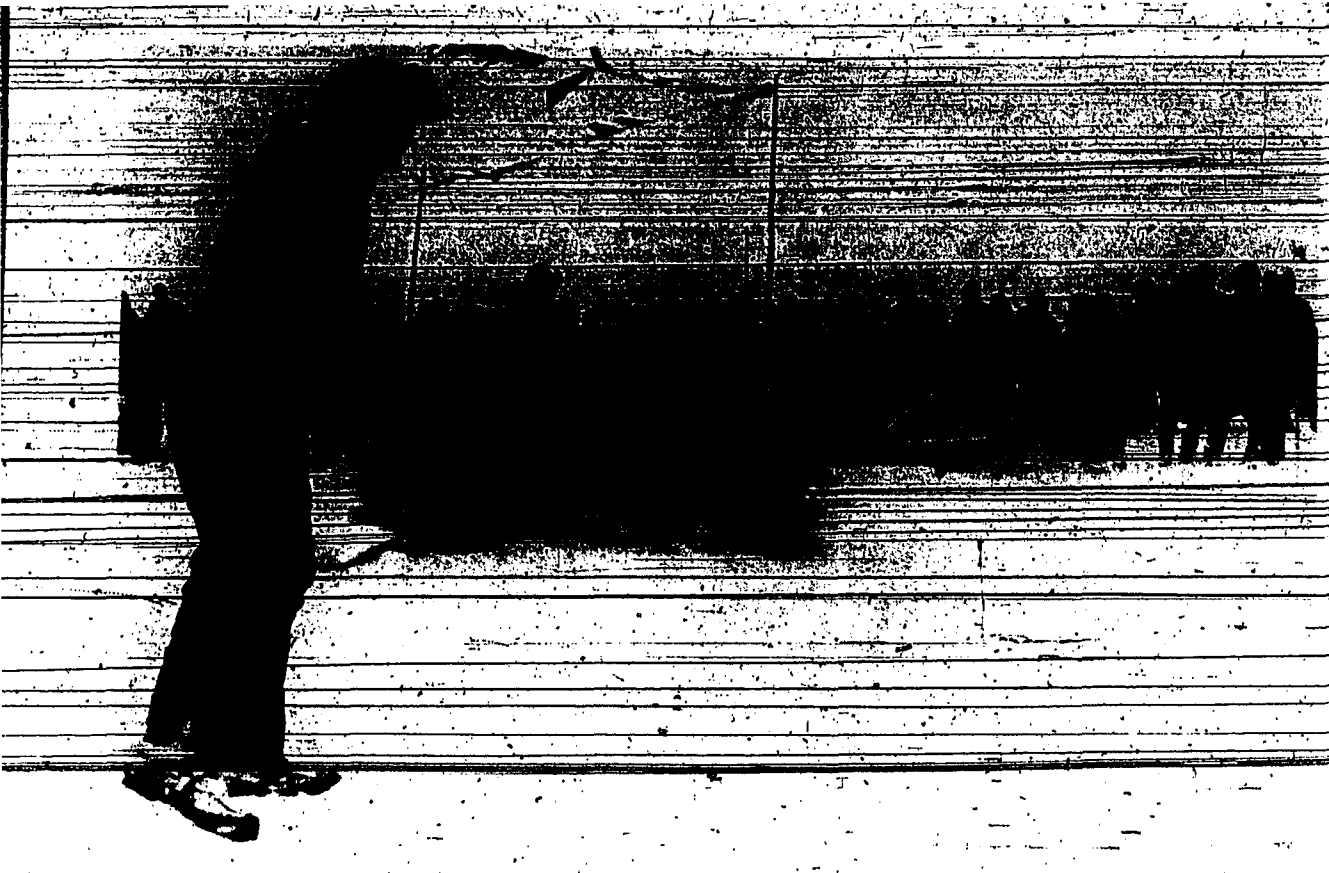

Dr. Ronald S. Berman, the endowment's chairman, said the grant to cover two years of support was made to the Division of Continuing Education of the Idaho State Board of Education.

The endowment's grant was combined with a gifts- and-matching offer of an additional $20,000, bringing to $72,285 the total amount which the State Board of Education might receive over the next two years.

Cold temperatures keep Dietrich school closed

DIETRICH — Students in the Dietrich School District continued their Christmas vacation today, when buses proved inoperative in subzero cold, according to Subt. Wayne Perron.

Though bus drivers attempted to cover their routes this morning, temperatures near 10 below zero made operating the buses impossible. With all heaters in operation, temperatures inside the bus could not be raised much above zero, Perron said. It was decided to keep the Dietrich school closed one more day.

Elsewhere in the Magic Valley, schools which had closed on Monday due to drifted county roads reopened, ending lengthy vacations for hundreds of students. Subzero cold nipped noses and reddened ears as the students returned to classrooms.

Snow-clogged highways in many parts of the Magic Valley were plowed clear this morning, as high winds which shipped powdery snow across the roads subsided.

Temperatures dropped well below zero in many areas. Fairfield traditionally the coldest spot in the valley, recorded 30 below this morning. Hailey was nearly as cold at 20 below, while Twin Falls recorded a frosty 7 below zero. Jerome, listed 3 below, Kimberly and Rupert each shivered at 0 degrees below zero, and Gooding recorded 8 below.

By contrast, Buhl "warmed up" to an overnight low of 2 degrees above zero. Mountain Home listed 5 above.

The subzero cold should abate tonight, according to the Weather Service office in Kimberly, with chilly but above-zero readings anticipated tonight as a storm front moves in from the west, bringing a chance of snow to the northern mountains, but little or no likelihood of snow to the valley proper.

A slight warming trend may be evident following the storm front. The subzero cold may not return in the near future, the weatherman said today.

State Highway 66, from Mountain Home to Fairfield, and U.S. 20, in the Arco area, which had been closed with heavy drifting on Monday had been plowed and were open today, according to the Idaho Highway Department.

Many routes had icy spots and a snow floor, but all roads were listed as open today. Interstate 66-N east and west of Twin Falls had icy spots but was in good condition this morning.

BURLEY — The Burley City Council will decide at its next meeting whether or not to purchase new trucks and equipment necessary to continue city operated garbage pickup.

The problem was discussed at a meeting of the council last night.

Present equipment must be replaced if the service is to continue. A new county operated landfill garbage dump will be opened in about two weeks, replacing the present city operated facility, making this an ideal time to consider a change to contract garbage hauling.

Councilmen Les Morgan, John Croft and Sylvan Burgl were appointed to study the garbage problem and present their findings to the council.

Superintendents and heads of various city departments were appointed by Mayor Garis Robertson. William Parsons will serve as city attorney; Charles Shaddock, city clerk; Kenneth Barry, chief of police; John Christian, head of the electric department; Jess Norton, street superintendent; Leon Bedke, city engineer; Ollis Williams, fire chief; Jack Keen, parks and recreation; James Ash, treasurer; LaVan Han-

Agreement set over landfill

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls City officials authorized City Manager Jean Millar to make an agreement with the city of Kimberly for Kimberly's use of the Twin Falls sanitary landfill.

It was reported at Monday night's City Council meeting that Kimberly officials had requested such accommodations after being notified by the Idaho Department of Health they must abandon their own dump near the Snake River Canyon east of Twin Falls.

A special study committee headed by Dr. Steve Lincoln, recommended $160 per month, which they said would represent about $10 per load. Severs, council members and Millar suggested the per load price be charged to take care of cleanup periods or other heavy hauling on special occasions.

Kimberly City officials had estimated about four loads per week would be hauled from their community.

An interim appropriations ordinance was approved giving the city a budget on which to operate until the 1972 budget is officially adopted. Millar said it would be ready within a few weeks. The interim appropriations are based on 25 per cent of last year's budget for each department.

Council members heard a second reading of a proposed ordinance to allow liquor sales on Sundays in bars located in conjunction with convention centers and banquet halls. Winston Jones was appointed to vote the 401.55 shares of Salmon Canal Co. water stock the city owns in the event Airport Manager Harry Merrick is unable to attend the annual meeting of the canal company. Mr. Merrick has been ill the past month.

'Penal complex' concept difficult in Idaho

Editors note: Director of Corrections Raymond May is a veteran of 15 years of corrections work. Some of his innovative programs are slowed because of the physical limitations of Idaho's prison. This is the second of five in a series drawn from an informal meeting between residents and officials. Today: The effect on programs.

BY LINDY HIGH
BOISE (UPI) — The new word to use is "penal complex" — a term describing an integrated correctional system designed to help an offender become a productive member of society.

That system is having a hard time working at the 101-year-old Idaho state institution and the effects are taking their toll.

Asked what part conditions played in the August riot, Cary Harrison, 37, Boise, replied, "I've been around prisons for a long time and I know this is a factor."

"The men in the yard feel that they can't even keep the institution going, how can they help me?" They look at a leak and see their future going down the drain."

Harrison is concerned that a move to the new site south of Boise is still about 18 months away.

"If something is not done to show some promise and some hope we might have a recurrence of what happened in August. I think they feel completely rejected when they see this place."

"Eventually you want someone to notice so you go out and do something to get noticed."

To psychologist Fred Mondin — working in Idaho under a federal grant to upgrade clinical and diagnostic facilities at the correctional institution — inmates see the institution as "some mutilation of society, that nobody cares."

"It's a matter of economics to get a man out of the institution and back into society. Director of Corrections Raymond May said it costs $5,400 per year per man for institutional care and only $44 per year per man on probation or parole.

This figure assumes an average caseload for social workers of about 50 per month — but Idaho's load runs closer to 80 per month.

One program May backs is the 120-day sentencing approach where an offender is retained in the custody of a judge who then determines in that time what the disposition of the case should be. Those sentenced under the program go to the institution but are given special evaluation and diagnostic treatment.

Unfortunately, those sentenced under the 120-day program live with the general population even though their cells are on a separate tier.

Not only is this difficult for the 120-day offender who must mix with everyone else but it is also difficult for those serving longer terms. One man noted it "kind of goes a little bit against so much time with someone who will leave shortly."

The work-study program — with separate housing — has a capacity of 21. There's no room for expansion in the converted former Warden's residence.

One resident, Gordon Watson, 21, Idaho Falls, said the limit means some of those desiring to enter the program must wait until there is room and that can lead to frustrations.

"If he really feels he should be eligible, why should the physical limitation interfere? Once again he feels slapped down."

Facilities for counseling residents are poor. One social worker recorded a session but his secretary was unable to transcribe the meeting because of the background noise.

Mondin said his surroundings present "quite an obstacle," adding, "It's very difficult to develop a relationship or confidence when (because of surroundings and distractions) a man can't reveal anything of himself."

Mondin said he could "talk treatment to a man until I'm blue in the face" but noted, you can't build a person back without the right supportive services."

In Mondin's case, minimal supportive service would probably include office facilities — which he does not have — and a little privacy when he begins talking about rebuilding a life.

One resident noted the program is just what it is possible to be encouraged during a counseling session, "as soon as you look around the whole hour is wasted."

Another questioned whether a move to the new site would discourage visitors who will have to travel a longer distance. But Fred Abrams, manager of prison industries, said he felt the atmosphere of the current buildings discourages visits.

May said those residents at the new site indicate their visitors come with greater regularity to the new surroundings.

"This whole site conveys a message...that despite what every staff person says to you, the message is that a prisoner of society is a rejected child," Mondin said.

Still, there are improvements. Such things as adequate case histories, diagnostic work, work-study and limited sentencing are relatively new to the prison.

Mike Workbridge, 30, Pocatello, said he could remember a few years ago going before a parole board with a friend and being told simply to "go back and improve."

"Both of us lagged for two years," he said. "At that time it was impossible, except for a limited few."

With 31 of the 35 coaches from across the nation participating, UCLA copped all but one of the first-place votes and finished with 308 points to increase its lead over second-place Marquette to 40 points.

The Bruins defeated Texas and highly regarded Ohio State to take their tournament and raise their record to 8-0.

Al McGuire's Warriors earned the other first place vote and wound up with 268 points as they won the Marquette Invitational with victories over Georgetown and Marshall.

North Carolina, which defeated Harvard and then dropped St. Joseph's (Pa.) and Bradley to win the Sugar Bowl Classic, moved to the No. 3 spot with 242 points as South Carolina, loser to Villanova in the Quaker City Holiday Festival in Philadelphia, dropped to fourth with 142 points.

Indiana jumped from seventh to fifth after taking the Old Dominion Classic while Louisville, the New York Holiday Festival champ, moved up from 13th to sixth. The Cardinals finished with 82 points, 45 less than Indiana.

But Pennsylvania made the biggest push of all, advancing from No. 19 to take down the seventh spot with 79 points. Long Beach State (63), Ohio State (58) and Maryland (49) completed the top ten.

Southern California, which lost to Penn in the first round of the Kodak Classic, fell from fifth to 11th, while Florida State, winners of the Far West Classic, rose from No. 17 to be twelfth. St. John's (N.Y.) dropped from eighth to 13th after losing to Maryland.

Hawaii, despite raising its record to 8-0 and winning the Rainbow Classic, fell two places to 14th while Villanova and Kentucky tied for the No. 16 spot. Southwestern Louisiana dropped from eleventh to No. 16.

Two newcomers, Virginia and Missouri, cracked the top 20 as the Cavaliers were rated 18th and the Tigers took down the No. 19 position. Brigham Young dropped from No. 9 to 20th.

Elusive Duane Thomas is no mystery man to Dallas coach

DALLAS (UPI) — Duane Thomas, the sphinx-like running phenom of the Dallas Cowboys who refuses to be interviewed or pose for pictures, is no mystery man to his coach, Tom Landry.

The 6-foot-1, 220-pound, 24-year-old No. 1, 1970 draft choice out of West Texas State has drawn a curtain around himself after joining the club late. His return came after bitter verbal combats with Cowboys management over his feelings that his original three-year contract needed revisions.

He is a tremendous football player and he's played like one ever since he broke back into the lineup in the first game of the regular schedule, but he's done all his talking with his talents on the field.

He rooms alone at home and on the road. He sits alone in the middle of the three-seat sections on the team's charter flights, sits off to himself on the bench while not on the field and declines all efforts to draw him into conversation.

The Cowboys' home town press corps has learned to live with the situation and after repeated rebuffs have left him alone.

They have asked Landry about him, but Landry's repeated reply has been, "I don't have any trouble communicating with him."

But, some of the out-of-town writers covering the 14-3 Dallas National Football Conference title game victory over San Francisco Sunday asked Landry if he could explain the "Thomas situation" to them because they found it very difficult to comprehend.

"I don't know what I can explain it," Landry told them, "but I'll try."

"Duane is a unique individual. His sole objective is to prepare to play football and he just doesn't like distractions. He's smart. You don't have to tell him anything much and he doesn't ask. But, he listens."

"You (meaning himself as coach) and the team just have to understand him. He acts as though he's not a part of the team, but he is. And, I and the team, have learned to understand that."

"I never ask him why he is the way he is, but I guess he has his reasons."

"He opens up when I talk to him," and I've talked to him an hour at a time, and no it isn't a one-sided conversation.

"Thomas is the type who uses his teammates ... by that I mean their blocking. If he seems to be hesitant getting away sometimes (as it appeared Sunday against the Forty-Niner defense), it's just because he's waiting to find daylight and then he explodes. Sometimes it looks like he's not doing anything," Landry admitted.

But, Thomas' statistics disprove that supposition—a fact which may interest the Miami Dolphins more in the Super Bowl Jan. 16 than the fact Thomas is "unique."

Ohio State rallies to 91-76 win

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Guard Allan Horniak scored 26 points Monday night as ninth-ranked Ohio State routed Creighton, 91-76, in the final 12 minutes of the game.

The Bluejays, losing for the fourth time in nine games, took an 18-16 lead midway through the first half, leading 40-37 at intermission.

Two quick baskets by Horniak at the start of the second half gave the Ohio State a short-lived 41-40 edge, but Creighton's shooting spree with the Knicks trailing 93-88 and two minutes to go on the clock. He tied the score at 95-95 on a three-point play with 1:30 to go and then traded baskets with Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to tie the game at 99-99 with 26 seconds left in the game.

Knicks edge Milwaukee 101-99

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walt Frazier capped a string of 13 straight points by scoring the winning basket on a 19-foot jump shot with three seconds remaining Monday night to give the New York Knicks a 101-99 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks.

Frazier started his remarkable shooting spree with the Knicks trailing 93-88 and two minutes to go on the clock. He tied the score at 95-95 on a three-point play with 1:30 to go and then traded baskets with Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to tie the game at 99-99 with 26 seconds left in the game.

Frazier scored 31 points but Abdul-Jabbar took game honors with 38. Abdul-Jabbar, who missed two foul shots earlier in the final quarter, scored Milwaukee's last eight points on two field goals and two foul shots.

Milwaukee opened the fourth quarter with a 77-72 lead and opened a nine-point margin at 81-72 as Oscar Robertson hit two foul shots and Jon McGlocklin connected from the field. The Knicks closed the gap on seven straight shots to cut Milwaukee's margin to 85-80. Milwaukee kept a five-point advantage at 93-88, before Frazier's torrid shooting took effect.

Abdul-Jabbar, who missed a desperation hook shot at the final buzzer, was playing his first game against the Knicks without Willis Reed, his opposing center. Reed, who expects to return to action later this month, cautioned his teammates that they were letting Abdul-Jabbar into the key, too often during the first half, when Kareem scored 31 points. The Knicks held Abdul-Jabbar to 15 points in the second half.

Milwaukee peeled off to an early 17-4 lead on a 13-0 spurt and led 28-18 at the conclusion of the first stanza. The Bucks held a 53-46 lead at intermission as Abdul-Jabbar scored the Bucks' last five points in the second period.

The Knicks managed a 7-1 tie late in the third quarter on a jumper by Jerry Lucas, but Abdul-Jabbar again was accurate as Milwaukee grabbed a 77-72 lead entering the final session.

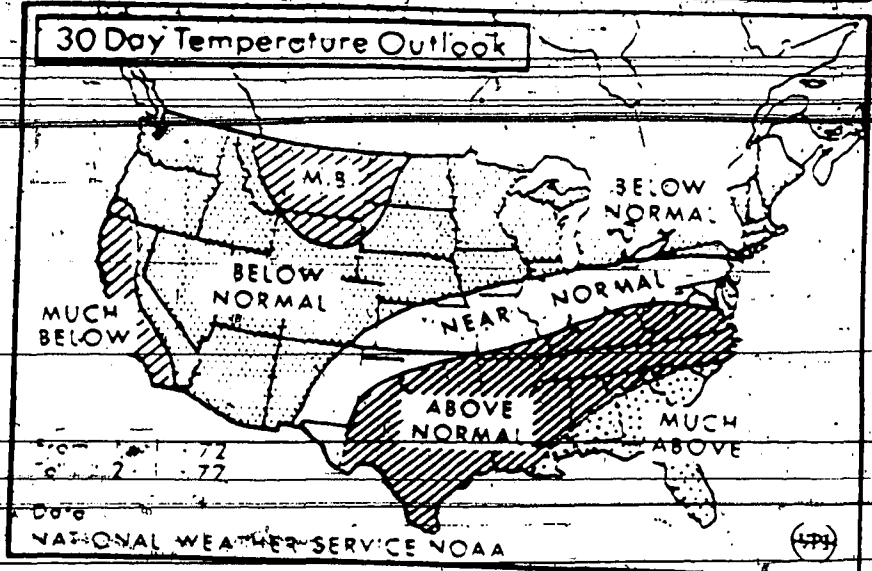

Robertson scored 26 points for the Bucks, who have lost 11 of their last 13 games against New York.

Moore said one manufacturer was impressed with the "clear litter" the machine picks up.

"By that he meant" bottles, cans and paper cartons and no bits of grass, sticks, rocks and other stuff picked up by other litter retrieving machines, Moore said.

"The disposal problem is almost as big as the clearlitter problem, so the less unnecessary litter you pick up, the better."

Moore believes his machine would interest state and local governments which have highway cleaning problems.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI). — What has happened to Zodiac? The taunting "killer" who boasts in letters to newspapers of committing 17 murders in Northern California and is believed responsible for at least six has not been heard from since last March.

Three years after his first killing, police are beginning to wonder if he may be dead, or have moved out of the country.

The first of the famous letters beginning "This is the Zodiac speaking," written in code, was received by three newspapers in July, 1969.

Deciphered, the letter turned out to be a rambling claim of three murders, all in Northern California lovers lanes, beginning Dec. 20, 1968.

Police determined the writer probably did commit those murders because of details known only to law officers and to the murderer himself.

On Sept. 27, 1969, in another lovers lane slaying, dates of the previous crimes were written in the dust of the victim's car — along with Zodiac's sign, a crossed circle resembling the night of a rifle.

From then on, Zodiac letters came in every couple of months. Boasts, taunts and threats would follow in misspelled words full of mystical and astrological allusions.

A message in October, 1979, declared, "School children are nice targets. I think I shall wipe out a school bus some morning." Just shoot off the front tires and then pick off the kiddies as they come bouncing out.

The message was accompanied by bloody cloth ripped from the shirt of a San Francisco cab driver who had been fatally shot in the back of the head.

For weeks deputies rode shotgun aboard many school buses among the San Francisco Bay area's 2.5 million people. Other buses were followed by police cars.

On Dec. 20, 1969, the anniversary of the first murder, Zodiac mailed off two more pieces of the shirt to attorney Melvin Belli, saying, "Please help me. I cannot remain in control for much longer."

Belli's invitation for a meeting with Zodiac was never accepted. Later a telephone caller purporting to be Zodiac engaged Belli on a local TV talk show in dramatic and rambling on-the-air conversations while hundreds of thousands listened.

The caller agreed to a meeting with Belli. The area was stalked out by police. Zodiac never showed up.

Much later, police establish that the caller was a fake another deranged person, now in a mental institution.

Dozens of Zodiac letters were pronounced by police to be phonies but more than a dozen are believed genuine. The handwriting matched, and certain information could only have been known to the real Zodiac.

Successively, the Zodiac messages raised the number of murders claimed. A 1970 note bragging of 13 loosely copied the entrance aria of "Ko-Ko, the lord high executioner in the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "The Mikado," with the words, "I've got a little list . . ."

The last letter, claiming "17 plus," was mailed in March from a San Francisco suburb to the Los Angeles Times. It indirectly took credit for the slaying of a coed in Riverside Oct. 30, 1966, the only one in southern California.

"Something must have happened to him," says Napa County Undersheriff Tom Johnson. "He likes publicity and he hasn't sought any."

Zodiac is believed to be a man of average height with short brown hair, heavy build, aged 35 to 45. He wears glasses.

Police have followed up thousands of tips from the public.
